Elections Update:

- Preparations for Iraq's constitutional referendum on October 15 are largely complete and early indications on how the vote will proceed from a technical point of view are positive, the United Nations top electoral official Carina Perelli said October 4. "The Independent Electoral Commission of Iraq has put into place an effective operation to carry out the 15 October referendum," Perelli – Director of the UN Electoral Assistance Division – said. "Important work has been carried out by this national institution to ensure that Iraqis are both responsible for organizing the referendum as well as voting in it."

[7.0] Promote Strategic Communications – Developments

Strategic Communications:

- Filmmakers, supported through a USAID Iraq Transition Initiative (ITI) grant, have produced a movie on ethnic tolerance and respect. The movie tells the story of two families, Arab and Kurdish, finding a way to overcome generations of mutual violence and live peacefully as neighbors. The ITI grant provided a camera, sound system, and computer equipment. The film has been distributed on compact disc to media outlets throughout the country, as well as to human rights and civil society organizations. In addition to supporting the production of the film, the grant has helped build the capacity of a local NGO supporting Iraqi film makers and the development of an independent media in Iraq.
 - The grant further provided lodging for filmmakers and judges participating in the first open film exhibition and competition held in Iraq. This international film festival had over 50 entries from all over the world. In addition to film showings, 140 films produced by Iraqis competed for prize money and recognition. The winning films will be shown in cinemas across Iraq and internationally.

Strategic Communications:

- The United Nations Secretary-General, Kofi Annan, issued a press release on September 30 conveying his concern about the heightened violence in Iraq, which is overwhelmingly aimed at the civilian population. He strongly condemned the attacks in Balad and Hillah, which appear to have been coordinated so as to kill and injure as many innocent civilians as possible. The Secretary-General believed that those who refuse to participate in the political process should not, by acts of intimidation and violence, deprive others of their right to do so. He urged Iraqis of all persuasions not to be deterred by such violence and to express themselves peacefully through the democratic process, starting with the forthcoming national referendum on the draft permanent constitution.
- A new poll by the International Republican Institute found that 85 percent of Iraqis plan to vote in the October 15 referendum on Iraq's new constitution. The poll, conducted between September 6-12 among 2,728 Iraqis, found majorities of Iraqis with positive views about the constitution, which has also provoked angry demonstrations, especially by Sunni Arabs. The poll found that 58 percent of Iraqis believed the constitution affirms the property identity of Iraq, and 56 percent believe it maintains Iraq's unity. The poll did not include any interviews in Anbar Province, the large and mostly Sunni area west of Baghdad where much of Iraq's violence is concentrated.

- The chart shows average daily power production in megawatt hours (MWH). 120,000 MWH goal equates to 20 hours at 6000 MW average supplied load or 24 hours at 5000 MW average supply load. Currently supplies are not much improved over last year when judged by hours of power, but this is due in part to an influx of new appliances. This has dramatically altered demand and diluted the effect of increased generation capacity on actual results.
